

Dr Marcus Kennedy

Marcus Kennedy is a medical practitioner and service leader, who is retired from operational roles and now spends part of his time as a consultant and in advisory and coaching roles. He was a health manager and director with broad experience in health systems management, clinical governance, emergency care, retrieval medicine, ambulance systems, aeromedicine and critical care.

As an expert in systems design, development and improvement, he has had a successful career in management, consulting and administration. Marcus has worked across the health sector, in rural, regional, metropolitan and tertiary settings and in clinical, administrative and executive roles.

Marcus has previously held positions as: Director, Adult Retrieval Victoria; Director of Emergency Services (at both The Royal Melbourne Hospital and Eastern Health); Director of Emergency Medicine and Ambulatory Care (Angliss Hospital) to name a few; and is a retired long-standing Member of Prehospital and Retrieval Committee (of Council).